Inspired by the natural wooded landscape and rolling hillsides, Godfrey Barnsley's grand estate home was originally known as Woodlands when it was established in the mid 19th century. Eventually, the area became known for Barnsley's elaborate gardens that served as a landmark for residents from miles around northwest Georgia. Today, Woodlands Grill evokes the storied legacy established by Godfrey Barnsley including the incorporation of the unique osage orange tree into the restaurant's logo. Examples of the osage orange tree still live at the resort today. They are easily identified by the unique, knobby green ornamental fruit that are often found on the ground nearby around the meadow and Barnsley Farm.
