

The New York Times

For Fall, Seven Notable New Hotels

By Shivani Vora
September 17, 2016

Opened Sept. 5
Charleston has lacked a luxury hotel, according to Ms. Small, but that scenario may have changed with the opening of the Dewberry, overlooking the city's historic Marion Square. The property has 155 rooms, each with eclectic furniture; there's also a spa and a Southern restaurant, Henrietta's Brasserie, that has been open since June and is already a local favorite. Prices from $325 a night.

FULL ARTICLE:

http://www.nytimes.com/2016/09/18/travel/for-fall-seven-notable-new-hotels.html?_r=1

