Design has always been an integral part of the hospitality industry. And luxury properties are relying more and more on it, not only to differentiate themselves from other properties, but also to create a memorable experience for their guests. Lavish interiors regardless of the design aesthetic are the standard and that includes everything from custom furnishings to designer bathroom amenities.

So if you find yourself wishing you had the same velvet sofa at home you saw at your last visit to the SoHo House or the many cool art objects that your room at the Miami Beach Edition was decorated with, you are not alone.

Thankfully, 5-star hotel chains and resorts know that sharing is caring so a lot of them have launched online stores where you can buy a lot of the room decor that their properties are decked in.

Keep scrolling to see what we are shopping from some of the world's most exclusive hotels.

The Dewberry Charleston, South Carolina

The Dewberry perfectly epitomizes Charleston—it has the same old school Southern spirit reflected in the elegant mid-century modern decor but it is also a modern and luxury destination that offers world-class service.

But what has come to define the hotel this year is a moment of creativity captured on camera and aimed at spreading positive vibes in these tough times. In April, the hotel spelled out “love” on its facade by connecting the lights of its rooms. Photographer Andrew Cebulka turned this beautiful moment into this fine art print, the proceeds from which benefit two Charleston-based charities.
