CHARLESTON: A Bit of Southern Charm

WHERE TO EAT & DRINK

For your daily dose of fruit and veggies, head to brunch at Basic Kitchen, featuring a rotating seasonal menu, in downtown Charleston. Order the avocado toast with black sesame sourdough and a sunny side up egg, plus a refreshing bright eyes juice made with carrots, orange, apple and lemon. For happy hour (or at any hour really) order a seafood tower at The Darling Oyster Bar or head over to The Ordinary for some orange wine and oysters on the half shell. For a romantic dinner with superb Lowcountry inspired food, make a reservation at Husk Restaurant, where Executive Chef Travis Grimes puts his spin on southern cuisine. To wet the palette, grab a drink at Husk Bar across the street. For dinner, order the chicken fried cauliflower with pickled dilly beans and brown butter, slow smoked pork ribs, and the cornmeal dusted catfish with rice, preserved tomato, shrimp bisque and mustard greens. After dinner head over to the living room bar at The Dewberry and order two Between The Sheets, made with rum, cognac, Crème de Cacao, lemon, and cinnamon.
