

The Mansion

at Glen Cove

Welcome to The Mansion

Turn onto the winding driveway of this glorious Gold Coast estate and begin envisioning your wedding day.

Let your imagination run to its limitless possibilities as you walk through The Mansion and look out at the sprawling acres, our experienced wedding professionals at your side ensuring your vision becomes a reality.

Whatever your dreams for your wedding may be, we're here to make sure the preparation allows you to save your energy for the excitement and celebration of this special day with your loved one, your family, and your friends.

History

Built in 1910 by and originally known as The Manor, this was the home of John Teele and Ruth Baker Pratt, designed by noted architect Charles Adams Platt and designated as “one of the best 12 Country Houses of America” by Country Life Magazine. Once a part of Long Island’s storied Gold Coast of 1,200 grand estates, and today welcomes guests with the same warm tradition set by the Pratt family. The Mansion is a magnificent estate from a grand bygone era with much of the original charm, integrity and aesthetic that has been preserved for all to enjoy.

“There should be no inharmonious note to throw the whole out of tune”

Setting

Cross through the grand portico entrance, and an elegant, baronial double staircase with imported paneling and antique fixtures awaits you. You and your guests will feel as if you’ve been embraced by the splendor of the past.

Walk through the magnificent ballroom and marvelous event rooms. The Mansion can accommodate up to 225 guests indoors and more than 1,000 for outdoor celebrations.

On our landscaped grounds, acres of Gilded Age style gardens and groomed lawns provide the perfect backdrop for ceremonies and receptions, with tented options available.

Imagine it, an indoors, outdoors, or both indoors and outdoors wedding, and our dedicated team at The Mansion will make it happen.
