Swanky spots to relax,
dine and play at.

The Well (pictured, bottom), a hushed 18,000 sq ft space in New York's Flatiron, employs expert practitioners trained in functional and integrative medicine, TCM, sports medicine, Ayurveda and other modalities, who collaborate on each client's wellness path. Spa treatments include acupuncture facials, reiki and deep-tissue massage. Also, the soundproofed meditation dome cuts out the Manhattan swirl outside.

The Times Square Edition, famed hotelier Ian Schrager's sophisticated addition to the neon-lit entertainment epicentre, introduces the next generation of modern luxury. Here, four distinct dining experiences mean you will never go hungry.

Equinox Hotel Hudson Yards, an achingly hip, swanky hotel with a sky lobby and reception on the 25th level, taps into the wellness and fitness obsession with offerings like cryotherapy and adaptogen-fuelled fine dining. Not to be missed is the startling Jaume Plensa monolith on the terrace's infinity-edge water feature.

Hotel Hendricks is a compact new boutique hotel just steps away from the theatre district, Times Square and Empire State Building. In its lobby, Paloma offers Latin-fusion tapas, while rooms feature stylish animal-print interiors by Marchello Pozzi, floor-to-ceiling mahogany and Italian woodwork.
