Seven New Luxury Hotels in New York City

Hotel Hugo

Soho's newest hotel, Greenwich Street's Hotel Hugo (from $399 per night), blends architecture inspired by the early 20th century with sleek and modern interiors. Opened in April, the 124-room property juxtaposes such industrial materials as chrome and exposed concrete with vertical gardens, marble floors with blue granite accents, and walnut paneling. The work of the Beverly Hills-based architect Marcello Pozzi, the hotel features an Italian restaurant by chef Carlo Bigi (formerly of Sant Ambroeus and Casa Lever) and a rooftop bar and lounge.
