NEW YEAR, NEW EVERYTHING

16 SIMPLE WAYS TO START ANEW IN 2016

By James Clark and Pamela Jacobs

IT'S FAR TOO EASY TO GET INTO A ROUTINE, ESPECIALLY IN THE WINTER. BUT RATHER THAN MAKE DOZENS OF GRAND RESOLUTIONS THAT ARE TOO EASY TO BE OVERWHELMED BY, START WITH THE SIMPLE THINGS. EAT SOMEWHERE DIFFERENT, OR TRY A NEW CLASS. HERE ARE 16 SIMPLE WAYS TO EXPAND YOUR HORIZONS THIS YEAR, BOTH IN NYC AND IN SOUTH FLORIDA.

EAT

Combina: Einat Admony's native Israeli cuisine is merged with a Spanish twist in her new restaurant in SoHo that's getting a lot of attention. The space is eclectic and colorful, with ingredients used in the food displayed on shelves around the dining room. This is the perfect spot to eat something new and vibrant.

330 West Broadway, New York, NY;

Vaucluse: Michael White's latest hot-spot, a French-inspired brasserie, has an urban twist without losing any of its class. This elegant environment incorporates the city's vibe, keeping it luxurious but modern and making it the perfect new place for a night out this year. With White at the helm, the food is guaranteed to be stellar every time.

100 E. 63rd St., New York, NY;

DRINK

The Bennett: Meaghan Dorman's drink list is featured in this swanky new watering hole in Tribeca. From the folks who brought you Dear Irving and Raines Law Room, this newbie is bound to impress.

134 West Broadway, New York, NY

Drexler's: This two-story, 35-seat, dimly lit bar with a craft cocktail menu is the perfect spot to enjoy a seasonal drink on a relaxing winter evening. It opened fall of 2015, and is sure to be a new hotspot for 2016.

9 Avenue A, New York, NY;

Blume Nightclub: Miami's nightlife scene is in full blume thanks to this new hot spot in Brickell, with a tropical-chic ambiance and the requisite long list of sexy scenesters who've been flocking to its dance floor. If you're looking to spice up your weekends, this is where you can be part of the in-crowd.

HEAL

KryoLife: Freeze yourself to remain beautiful this winter. This unique company uses cryotherapy and nutritional and physical fitness counseling to help enhance beauty and overall physical and mental health. Treat yourself this year with a treatment that is slightly odd, but surprisingly refreshing.

57 W. 57th St., New York, NY; kryolifehealth.com

Carillon Miami Beach: At this luxurious hotel spa, you'll find some of the most innovative, unique, and all-encompassing wellness experiences anywhere in the world. Any spa can offer you massages and facials—but how about an open-air rooftop HydroSpa, a crystal steam room, a starlit herbal laconium (that's a dry heat room to you and me), and Miami's only igloo? We're sold.

6801 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, FL; carillonhotel.com/spa

STAY

Hotel Hugo: Opened in April 2014, this artsy, industrial-chic hotel—located between West SoHo and the Hudson River—is one of the coolest and most beautiful newcomers on the block. With its sophisticated rooms and suites and oh-so-hot dining/nightlife options (Il Principe, Bar Hugo, and AZUL), Hotel Hugo is your best bet for a staycation in the New Year.

525 Greenwich St., New York, NY; hotelhugony.com

Opal Sands Resort: With its opening slated for February 2016, the ultra-luxurious Opal Sands will bring a new level of waterfront wow-factor to the beautiful beaches of Clearwater. Expect 230 contemporary rooms and suites, breathtaking Gulf views from every window, a full-service spa, a beachside tiki bar, a Gulf-front zero-entry pool, and 25,000 square feet of event space—all on what USA Today named the “Best Beach in Florida.”
