

A Great Day

THE PLAZA

For nearly 400 years, the Santa Fe Plaza has remained the central part of the city. You can find a blend of Spanish, Native American, and Mexican cultures in charming boutiques, restaurants, bookstores, and art galleries.

The Santa Fe experience™

ONLY AT HOTEL SANTA FE

Breakfast Tia Sophia's

210 W San Francisco St

Start your day where the phrase “breakfast burrito” was coined. Santa Feans have been eating eggs and bacon in a tortilla for a long time, but Tia Sophia’s put the breakfast burrito on the menu in the 1970s.

Shop on and around the historic Plaza

The historic Plaza has been the heart of Santa Fe ever since it was founded in 1607. The Plaza is also the terminus of the original Santa Fe trail, which connected New Mexico with Missouri. Historic buildings still line the streets and are filled with iconic shops that help define “Southwest Style.” Take the morning to stroll around and visit these shops.

Must-See Shops around the Plaza:

- Doodlet’s, 120 Don Gaspar Ave
- Shiprock Santa Fe, 53 Old Santa Fe Trail
- The Rainbow Man, 107 E Palace Ave
- Cowboys & Indians, 72 E San Francisco St
- The Chile Shop, 109 E Water St

Coffee Holy Spirit Espresso (Outdoor seating only)

225 W San Francisco St

Grab a quick espresso or tea from Holy Spirit Espresso, a funky coffee counter in an old elevator shaft.

Visit the portal at Palace of the Governors

105 W Palace Ave

The portal is reserved for the sale of Native American crafts as a means of preserving the culture of New Mexico's pueblo and tribal cultures.

Lunch The Shed (Open for lunch from 11:00am-2:30pm)

113½ E Palace Ave

Head over to one of Santa Fe's most popular spots, The Shed. Expect a wait for a table, but this locals' favorite is worth it for New Mexican food.

Visit St. Francis Cathedral

131 Cathedral Pl

The cathedral is best visited in the afternoon when light filters through the stained glass. Feel the history as you walk around the grounds of St. Francis Cathedral, the mother church of the Santa Fe Diocese. All are welcome to visit the church. You can also walk the labyrinth in the front of the cathedral.

Visit Loretto Chapel

207 Old Santa Fe Trail

Home of the Miraculous Staircase, Loretto Chapel is a must-visit stop for any tourist. Mystery surrounds the building of the staircase, which has no support and was built with wood not native to New Mexico. Some believe St. Joseph—the patron Saint of Carpenters—built the staircase.

Relax at The Spa at Hotel Santa Fe

1501 Paseo de Peralta (Please book in advance)

Head back to your room to drop off the treasures you found during the day, then head to The Spa at Hotel Santa Fe to relax after a full day. Since you've been doing a lot of walking, we recommend the Healing Earth or the White Sage treatments.

Dinner Amaya

After a relaxing treatment at the spa, stay in for dinner tonight. Our menu features seasonal ingredients and local Pueblo and Northern New Mexican culinary traditions. For a special experience, make reservations to dine in our private teepee (weather permitting).
