DID YOU KNOW...

- 192 – 198 King Street, the present address of Kings Courtyard Inn and several retail shops, is known to many Charleston historians as the Blum Building. It was built in 1853 by Colonel J. Charles Blum and designed in the Greek revival style with Egyptian detail by Francis D. Lee. Other noteworthy buildings designed by Mr. Lee include 141 East Bay Street and the Unitarian Church on Archdale Street. Horlbeck Alley, located a few paces south of the inn is named for the family of Mrs. Blum, Esther Horlbeck.
