

NEWS
FOOD&WINE

May 15, 2018

All the Ways to Celebrate the Royal Wedding in the U.S.

From elegant hotel packages to boozy brunches to afternoon tea, here's how you can cheers to the happy couple on May 19.

ELISABETH SHERMAN May 09, 2018

I know that it can sometimes seem as though there's very little to look forward to in life besides the weekend. Getting out of bed in the morning, a commute in traffic or a packed train, not to mention that it's officially spring allergies season. Well, cheer up because there's one more reason to get up in the morning: Prince Harry and Meghan Markle are getting married in just 10 days. We Americans will just have to watch, longingly, from afar as the only cool members of the royal family tie the knot, but rest assured there are plenty of ways to watch, celebrate, eat, drink, and be merry in honor of the couple who has captivated the world. Sure you could always throw your own viewing party, but there are spots all over the country throwing their own soirees that will make you feel like royalty. From fancy hotel packages to tea at the pub or a bowl of comforting soup at home, here are all the ways you can celebrate the royal wedding in the U.S., ranked from super posh to DIY and cozy.

Lotte New York Palace royal wedding breakfast-in-bed—New York City

For one day only, you can get the royal treatment at this elegant hotel. On the morning of the royal wedding, enjoy a breakfast-in-bed tea service for $75, which includes a mini royal wedding cake. Just be advised that you must order the meal 48 hours in advance.